Public Hearing Before Board of Aldermen-Sidewalks. RELICS OF THE MAINE.

Desired for Town of Windham, at Suggestion of Thomas J. Kelley.

Saturday afternoon Attorney Thomas J. Kelley called at the office of the board of selectmen in the town building and suggested to First Selectman J. J. Tew that in view of the fact that there is so much agitation relative to the raising and disposal of the wreck of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, if congress decides to award souvenirs and relies of the hulk, the town of Windham should not be forgotten.

Mr. Kelley said that Windham was entitled as mich as any other town and perhaps more, to a suitable relic of the Maine for these reasons: First, that a Willimantic boy, John Shea, who formerly lived in Stone row, now lies at the bottom of Havana harbor; and second, that Willimantic, when the call for troops was issued by President McKinley in 1898, was one of the few titles in the whole state to respond with more than her full quota, as, Company E, Third regigent, went out of here with 108 men.

He also, said that Windham has a suitable, place to preserve the relic, if one be donated the town, as she suitable place to preserve the relic, if one be donated the town, as she can place it in the town building, or, if she should be so fortunate as to secure one of the Maine's guns, it secure one of the Maine's guns, it could be mounted upon the lawn neav Grand Army hall. The board of selectmen will take the matter up immediately through the district's representative in congress, E. W. Higgins of Norwich. The board has the assurance that every organization and society in town will stand back of it in the endeavor to secure for Windham a relic of the Maine.

DRIVING ACCIDENT.

Mrs. C. C. Weller Thrown from Carriage When Frightened Horse Bolts.

As the result of a runaway about $30 o'clock Saturday evening at the foot of Jillson's hill, Mrs. C. C. Weller is seflously injured. Percy Kemball was the driver of the runaway. The horse, a large gray, belonging to August Nelson, living on the road to South Windham near Dugway hill, was shot Sunday morning by Dr. B. K. Dow.

was shot Sunday morning by Dr. B.
K. Dow.

Mrs. Weller, who resides with the Nelsons, was expecting a friend to arrive on the train near seven o'clock and was being driven to the union station in this city by Mr. Kemball, who works for Mr. Nelson.

As their outfit approached the foot of Jillson's hill, a train rumbled over the railroad bridge and the noise so frightened the horse that he botted into the water tank in Thread Mill square. The horse's right shoulder struck against the tank with such force as to throw Mrs. Weller headlong into the tank. Mr. Kemball was thrown upon the road. Passerby assisted Mr. Kemball to carry Mrs. Weller, who was unconscious, to the apartments over E. F. Casey's store, where Dr. F. E. Wilcox was called and rendered aid. She was removed later in a cab to Mr. Nelson's home, where late Sunday afternoon she was reported to be a little more comfortable. The horse, a valuable one, was shot Sunday forenoon in a shed near the office of the American Thread company, where it was taken by the driver the night before; its whole right side having been paralyzed as a result of the blow.

The adjourned hearing to examine A. A. Trudeau, the groceryman, who recently went into bankraptcy, was held Saturday morning before Referee in Bankruptey A. J. Jowen Those present were Trustee F. R. Jackson, George E. Stiles, representing Stiles & Harrington, A. L. French, representing Swift & Co., Marcus L. Tryon and Attorney Thomas J. Kelley. The referee explained that he had appointed Attorney Kelley to help the trustee on the accounts and to represent Mr. Trudeau. Mr. Stiles started to object, as he did not believe that the referee had such a right, to be paid out of the proceeds of the estate. Judge Bowen stuck to his point, and Mr. Kelley took up the examination of the different accounts.
